

Compositions based on quotes

Introduction uses quote

- as thesis for discussion
- to question its validity (today)
- to (re)define (elements of) quote and translate into „new“ thesis
- as a starting point for a very personal analysis of a phenomenon, fact or character this quote describes

We need better schools!

- This is a claim often made by .... to underline ..... But is it really true that ... and .... ?
- Arthur Golm claims that 35% of all Americans will have AIDS by 2050. If we accept this, there are three far-reaching consequences worth looking at.

- When Philip says „I feel freer than ever before“ on page 154, he has come a long way. In my opinion his freedom consists of several experiences he has made in America, which for him is a place to be young and wiser at the same time.
- Happiness can't be bought!
To decide if this still holds true, I would first like to define my understanding of happiness! Today happiness is ...
